AI Practice Worksheet

Basic Information Table

|                         |  |
|-------------------------|--|
| Name                    |  |
| Which client did I use? |  |
| Why?                    |  |

Below, you will find a table for inputs, prompts, outputs, and analysis. Please diligently document all of these pieces as part of the AI Practice Workshops. Save this document and turn it in with your WP2 drafts.

Writing Areas to Try AI

In order to get full points, you'll need to use AI to help you with writing in all five areas below. All of them will be covered as part of the AI Practice Workshops. These areas are:

1. Brainstorming
2. Outlining
3. Modeling
4. Drafting
5. Revising

Sample AI Use Table

| Input   | Prompt  | Output   | Analysis  |

| For WP2, you will experiment with AI and writing, tracking prompts and outputs. You'll then use this information to come up with a set of expectations for yourself related to AI and writing, such as when it's appropriate to use AI in writing and how. You'll explain these choices clearly in a reflection that accompanies your expectations document. | Please edit the next paragraph for concision | For WP2, you will experiment with AI and writing, tracking prompts and outputs. Using these results, you will develop a set of expectations for how and when to use AI in your writing. You will then explain these expectations in a reflection accompanying your document.  | It's shorter and still keeps the same general meaning. I think it sounds a little weird, but it's not too bad. I might use this when revising the document.  |

You will then use this information to develop a set of expectations for your own use of AI in writing, including when and how it is appropriate to use. Finally, you will explain these expectations in a reflection accompanying your document. | It made the paragraph a little longer, but I admit that it's probably a little clearer. I'm not sure which is better: the paragraph above or this one. I think I'm more likely to use the second paragraph even though it's a little longer just because it sounds more natural to me. |
